

Second Baptist Church hosts First Recognition and Awards Ceremony for African American Educators

African American educators in Evanston schools will be honored at a ceremony hosted by the historic Second Baptist Church, 1717 Benson Ave, Evanston, IL .

According to Rev. Michael Nabors of Second Baptist Church “154 years after slavery ended- education has never been more important for African Americans and their communities. From the moment of liberation from bondage, education and blacks were joined together in a marvelous journey towards excellence and success. We delight in sharing our appreciation and respect for those African American educators in Evanston, who continue in this grand tradition. And we believe the best is yet to come.”

The African American Educator Award recognizes and honors African American 6 educators, teacher, support personnel, and administration, who have made outstanding contributions to public elementary and secondary education in School Districts 65 and 202. Nominees have actively collaborated with the professional learning community, parents and families, inspiring students with diverse backgrounds and varied learning styles. They have earned the respect and admiration of students, parents and colleagues, playing an active and useful role in the local and school communities.

Monique Parsons, 202 School Board stated that, “Growing up in Evanston, I benefited from being taught by teachers who looked like me, and upheld the values instilled in my household. African American teachers inspired me beyond the classroom, and it was through them that I believed I could be anything I wanted to be. When we honor our educators, who shape the world, we transform a nation towards high expectations and hope”.

The African American Educators Recognition and Awards Ceremony will take place Sunday, February 26th during the 10:30 am worship service at Second Baptist Church. Nominations for the awards will be accepted through January 29, 2017 and can be submitted online at tinyurl.com/sbcteacherawards, by email to karendavis@secondbaptistchurch.org, or to sbcteacherawards@gmail.com.
